RECOMMENDED READING LIST

Why do things die? by Katie Daynes

A lift the flap book exploring the circle of life. Explores the emotions and facts around death, with questions such as Is it ok to talk about dying? What happens when someone dies? and how can I stop feeling sad?

Let's Talk About When Someone Dies - starting conversations with children about death and bereavement by Molly Potter and Sarah Jennings

Clear, easy to understand language to answer complex questions about death and how a child might feel when somebody dies.

I Miss You: A first look at death by Pat Thomas

A good first information book to talk about death and bereavement. It covers what dead means and talks about funerals and customs (but not cremation). It talks about reasons people die and what some cultures believe.

Is Daddy Coming Back in a Minute? by Elke and Alex Barber

This book explains (sudden) death to very young children in a way they can understand for their age and stage of development.

When Dinosaurs Die: a guide to understanding death by Laurie Krasny Brown and Marc Brown

A good information book with lots of examples to prompt discussions about understanding death. It explains that we can die at any age and explains different reasons people die (including war and suicide). Mentions cremation and lots of beliefs from other cultures plus what people believe happens after we die.

What Happened to Daddy's Body? by Elke and Alex Barber

Sequel to 'Is Daddy Coming Back in a Minute'. Explains what happens after death. This book helps very young children understand cremation, burial, and spreading the ashes.

In My Heart by Jo Witek

A book of the many feelings we have in our hearts.

Always and Forever by Alan Durant

An illustrated storybook. A friend of Fox, Otter, Mole and Hare dies and everyone is really sad. They all find lovely ways to remember their friend and this helps them to come to terms with his death.

Badgers Parting Gifts by Susan Varley

When old badger dies his friends think they will be sad forever but they remember him and manage to come to terms with his death.
